MATERIALS

TECHNICAL FABRICS

CoolPass: Is a highly advanced material that was designed to keep the body cool and dry. This new type of polyester is a 100% breathable microfiber, will immediately pass any transpiration moisture. Clothing will dry much quicker than any other workwear and is highly suitable for wearing as bottom layer in the three-layer system. The clothing is worn directly on the body and will quickly pass any moisture to the layer above. That way you will stay cool during summertime!

CoolPass Mesh: The CoolPass Mesh has the same nature as the CoolPass, but because of the porous texture the material is more breathable, really good as an activewear fabric.

CoolIR: This is made out of tiny and uniquely designed light polyamide threads which form a checked pattern. The tiny thin grilles woven through the fabric allow air to just easily glide through the fabric so moisture easily passes the body. It is superlight but not transparent due to the other components of the fabric where threads are woven more thickly.

Softshell: It is a breathable, moderately wind, water and UV resistant, double knit fabric which is made from super finely spun polyester fibres. The end result is a very smooth, washable and functional material. The round handle of the fabric means it can easily be moulded to the body to create a slim fit shape without feeling tight.

MATERIALS

COTTON BASED FABRICS

Pique: A staple fabric in the sportswear industry, pique has long been regarded as the go-to fabric for polo shirts. 'Pi-kay' refers to the weaving style characterized by the raised parallel cords. Mainly woven of cotton, pique has proven to be breathable, durable and easily cared for as its textured weave does not show perspiration stains readily. This fabric gives excellent comfort.

Stretch Cotton: This material shows good durability, utility & high water-absorbing capacity. In humid atmosphere it can absorb 27% of water without getting damp, has very good breathable characteristics, it is hypoallergenic, feels great to touch, suits perfectly for people with skin hypersensitivity. It has low thermal-conductivity, therefore it is an ideal material for summer clothes, it prevents you from heat. It has very high elasticity characteristics, is easily washable and can be ironed even at high temperature.

Two-Way: This fabric can be stretched into two directions. It is best used in clothing where you need an elastic waist and free range of motion. The material is soft because of the cotton base, therefore the texture is comfortable and breathable as well.

MATERIALS

ADDITIONAL SYNTHETIC MATERIALS

Cosy Fleece: Because of its excellent insulation properties, fleece is a very warm fabric and is often used in seasonal attire designed for colder climates. Synthetic fleece is often employed as an alternative to wool because it is typically softer and less irritating to the skin without sacrificing warmth or quality.

Fleece: A lightweight, warm, and soft fabric, fleece has some of wool's good qualities but weighs a fraction of the lightest available wools. It is hydrophobic, holding less than 1% of its weight in water. It is machine washable and dries quickly. It is a good alternative to wool - that's because it's also called vegan-wool.

Knitted Fleece: The material is perfect for winter. It's a two-sided fabric, with a knitted, streaky side and with a warm, wool-like fleece side. Also in cold atmosphere the material keeps the heat.

Quilted Water-Repellent: The fabric is resistant to penetration by water (but not entirely waterproof), therefore breathable and moderate wind resistant. The surface of the material is quilted, hereof the pattern of the fabric is nice and feminine.

Viscose Poly Jersey: This type of cotton-like viscose is really soft and light, it feels good to wear, because the material is breathable and nice to touch. Thanks to the spandex the fabric is flexible, and it keeps its shape after several washings.
